Y. 257, revg. 93 App. Div. 500. 87 N. Y. Supp. 826. In the case of Congregation K. I. A. P. v. Mayor, 52 Hun, 507. it was held that the building, of which the principal story was used as a. synagogue. while the lower story contained the living rooms of the janitor of the synagogue and bath tubs and plunging pools for men and women, which were accessible for a pecuniary consideration, payable to the janitor in lieu of salary, to all Jews, whether worshippers at that synagogue or not, was not exempt from taxation. for the reason that the building was not exclusively used, for one or more of the purposes specified in the statute. The religious society of Friends owned four hundred and fifty acres of land upon which was conducted an institution for the education of Indian children. A portion of this land was cultivated and used for raising crops and the pasturage of cattle. The crops raised were more than suficient for the use of the school and the mirplus was sold and the proceeds devoted to the school. It was held that only the land used for crops and pasturage was exempt from taxation. People ex rel. Blackburn v. Barton. 63 App....
